MONACO MASTERS SHOW

JULY – AUGUST 2022

OPERA GALLERY

Opera Gallery a le plaisir de présenter cette année encore, sous le Haut Patronage de son Altesse sérénissime le Prince Albert II de Monaco, le Monaco Masters Show. Cette exposition met en valeur chaque année des œuvres d'artistes modernes et contemporains.

L'exposition tisse un dialogue entre peintures, œuvres sur papier et sculptures de différents lieux, époques et courants artistiques. Il célèbre l'esprit et le génie de près d'une trentaine d'artistes dont les œuvres riches et novatrices ont façonné le monde de l'art et de la culture pendant près d'un siècle.

Du 1^{er} juillet au 31 août 2022, nous vous invitons à plonger au cœur de l'onirisme de Marc Chagall, du cubisme de Pablo Picasso ou encore du tubisme de Fernand Léger. À leurs côtés, nous vous convions à contempler le lyrisme de Georges Mathieu, les abstractions de Hans Hartung et les jeux de lumières de Pierre Soulages. Parmi ces grands maîtres de l'art moderne nous comptons aussi le spatialiste Lucio Fontana, le créateur de l'Art Brut, Jean Dubuffet ou encore Karel Appel, un des pionniers du mouvement CoBrA. Chacun de ces artistes incarnant une part de la modernité, un élan d'avant-garde.

Le Monaco Masters Show 2022 est un hommage aux grands maîtres de l'art moderne et contemporain.

Pour la onzième année consécutive, Opera Gallery est heureuse de partager une partie des bénéfices de cette exposition avec Mission Enfance, une association humanitaire monégasque d'aide à la scolarisation d'enfants en détresse dans le monde.

Opera Gallery is pleased to present again this year, under the High Patronage of his Serene Highness Prince Albert II of Monaco, the Monaco Masters Show. This exhibition features works from Post-war and Contemporary artists each year.

This exhibition reinvents a dialogue between paintings, works on paper and sculptures from different places, periods and artistic movements. It celebrates the spirit and genius of nearly thirty artists whose creative and innovative works have shaped the world of art and culture for almost a century.

From 1 July to 31 August 2022, we invite you to delve into the heart of Marc Chagall's onirism, Pablo Picasso's Cubism or Fernand Léger's tubism. You are also welcome to contemplate the lyricism of Georges Mathieu, the abstractions of Hans Hartung and the play on light of Pierre Soulages. On view, there will also be works by the spatialist Lucio Fontana, the creator of Art Brut, Jean Dubuffet and Karel Appel, one of the pioneers of CoBRA. They all embodied a part of modernity and Avant-Garde.

Works by established contemporary artists will also be exhibited, such as Kenny Scharf's tags, Mel Bochner's lettering, Manolo Valdés' meninas and Yayoi Kusama's dots.

The Monaco Masters Show 2022 is a tribute to the great masters of Modern and Contemporary art.

For the eleventh consecutive year, Opera Gallery is pleased to share a part of the profits generated by this exhibition with Mission Enfance, a Monegasque association dedicated to providing underprivileged children from around the world access to education.

“Avec nous, grâce à l'éducation, soyez les artisans du monde de demain !”

Les larmes de Sophia sont une réalité. Elles creusent un large sillon sur son visage empoussiéré par la pollution de Kaboul. Rentrée chez elle, la jeune fille jette son cartable rempli d'espérance sur le tapis du salon. Elle en voudrait presque à son pauvre sac, coupable de tant d'espoir déçu. Elle pourrait incriminer les talibans et leur forteresse d'incompréhension humaine, mais la peur s'est instillée en elle. En Afghanistan, la lutte est inégale face au seul levier des groupes au pouvoir : la virulence de l'obscurantisme. Dans sa chambre de Kaboul, une lycéenne pleure.

Je me souviens des éclats de rire de nos premières bachelières aux confins de la vallée pourtant traditionnelle du Panjshir. Avec notre équipe afghane, nous avancions millimètre après millimètre, auprès des autorités, des villageois, des parents, vers l'éducation de tous, filles et garçons, lors de la construction de nos écoles. Parce que nous savions que l'avancée des filles en matière d'instruction est fondamentale à l'évolution du monde, mais que celle des garçons, particulièrement dans cette société patriarcale, est capitale à une gouvernance raisonnable de l'Afghanistan.

L'ignorance est mère de la manipulation et de l'instrumentalisation des peuples avant d'engendrer la privation de leur liberté et in fine de leur humanité. C'est contre cette menace qui nous concerne tous que résiste Mission Enfance depuis plus de trente ans. Nos 350 écoles construites dans le monde en témoignent.

Avec Sophia, nous ne pouvons que souhaiter que les lycéennes afghanes retrouvent au plus vite leur droit à être éduquées : en attendant, nous allons renforcer nos écoles primaires de filles et de garçons. Les enfants libanais n'ont plus les moyens de s'inscrire dans les établissements scolaires : nous finançons leur scolarité, leurs chaussures, leurs vêtements, nous leur offrons des bons alimentaires mais aussi les salaires de leurs enseignants, leur transport... Les communautés déplacées et réfugiées au Kurdistan irakien n'ont toujours pas accès à leur terre d'origine où les conflits ont repris : nous construisons une école pour 1.000 élèves dans le nord de l'Irak.

Ces enfants souffrent et connaissent, pour certains, beaucoup trop tôt, le prix de la vie. À travers l'enseignement, nous faisons en sorte que leur cœur batte de nouveau pour apprendre. Et que diplômes en poche, ils pleurent des larmes de joie.

Et c'est bien une des raisons de cette nouvelle édition du "Monaco Masters Show" d'Opera Gallery : participer à l'avenir des enfants secourus par Mission Enfance dans le monde. Merci !

*With us, thanks to education,
be the craftsmen of our future!*

Sophia's tears are a reality. They dig deep furrows in the dust on her cheeks, caused by Kabul's pollution. Back home, she throws her backpack, once full of hope, on the living room rug. She almost resents it, as if it were guilty of the disappointed expectations and promises. She could accuse the taliban and their bastion of ignorance, but she is now filled with fear. In Afghanistan, there is little to no lever that faces the obscurantist groups ruling the country. In her Kabul room, a young girl is crying.

I remember the laughter of our first high school graduates, in the depths of the very traditional Panjishir valley. Thanks to our afghani team, we have progressed, inch by inch, with authorities, villagers and parents towards education for all - boys and girls - through the construction of our schools. We know that girls' access to education is key, and so is boys' - in a patriarchal society in particular, to lay the foundations of a reasonable government in Afghanistan.

Ignorance is at the root of manipulation and instrumentalisation of the people, which are gateways to the deprival of their freedom and in fine, of their humanity. Mission Enfance, for more than thirty years, has been fighting against such a threat. Our 350 schools across the world are the living proof of this battle.

We wish that high school girls like Sophia will be able to recover their right to education. Meanwhile, we are strengthening our elementary schools for boys and girls. Lebanese children are too poor to afford to enroll in school : we provide them scholarships, clothes and shoes, offer them food stamps, but also take charge of the teachers' salary as well as their transportation, and other amenities. Communities that sought refuge in Iraqi Kurdistan still cannot go back to their motherland where war has restarted, so we are building a school for 1,000 students in the region.

These children are suffering and many are too young to be experiencing these hardships of life. Through education, we want to help them be excited to learn again. And once they have their diploma, let them cry tears that will be tears of joy, this time.

Hence this new edition of Monaco Masters Show at Opera Gallery, so more may participate in building a future for the children rescued by Mission Enfance. Thank you !

Claude Ruiz and Maya Picasso have confirmed the authenticity of this work

En 1936, une figure phare entre dans la vie de Picasso : la photographe surréaliste Dora Maar. Dans ce portrait, Picasso déforme les traits frappants qu'il admirait en elle, en transformant ses épais cheveux noirs, ses yeux séduisants et son nez aquilin en projections anguleuses et linéaires. La palette est en sourdine, comme beaucoup d'œuvres de l'artiste en temps de guerre, qui étaient souvent peintes à la lueur des bougies du soir. Le sens très aigu du dessin de Picasso imprègne ce travail, par son utilisation maîtrisée de la peinture et la pureté audacieuse de la ligne qui sont aussi impactants qu'une composition beaucoup plus grande.

JE NE PEINS PAS CE QUE
JE VOIS, JE PEINS CE QUE JE PENSE.

In 1936, a great force entered Picasso's life : the surrealist photographer Dora Maar. In this portrait, Picasso distorts the striking features he admired in her, by transforming her thick dark hair, seductive eyes and aquiline nose into angular, linear projections. The palette is muted, like so many of the artist's war time works, which were often painted in the dim candlelight of the evening. Picasso's very acute sense of drawing pervades this work, by his controlled use of paint and the bold purity of the line that achieve the impact of a much larger composition.

THEM NOT AS I SEE THEM.

dans l'irréalité d'un monde suspendu et diaphane, ni totalement imaginaire ni totalement tangible, dans lequel règnent couleurs vives et lumière.

Couple au-dessus de la table fleurie à Vitebsk takes up the theme of marriage and love in the twilight of the artist's life. In this work, Chagall reconciles incongruous elements while playing on the scales between the characters and the background. He immerses the viewer in the unreality of a suspended and diaphanous world, neither totally imaginary nor totally tangible, in which bright colour and light reign.

IF I CREATE FROM

Couple au-dessus de la table fleurie à Vitebsk reprend le thème du mariage et de l'amour au crépuscule de sa vie. Dans cette œuvre, Chagall concilie des éléments hétéroclites tout en jouant sur les gammes entre les personnages et le décor. Il offre au spectateur une immersion

En 1954, Fernand Léger peint Deux femmes tenant des fleurs, reprenant un sujet que l'on retrouve sans cesse dans son œuvre picturale. Deux nus féminins sont dans une relation spatiale l'un avec l'autre, image qui explore les formes figuratives, les couleurs et l'espace. Dans ses tableaux, ses duos de femmes sont souvent accompagnés d'un accessoire, comme ici la fleur qui est le centre et l'équilibre du tableau. Les figures féminines de Léger sont une continuation de ses figures mécanistes des années 1920, mais néanmoins classiques. Ils font en effet revivre un néoclassicisme qui prend sa source dans la phase néoclassique de Picasso à cette époque.

ABSTRACTION.

In 1954, Fernand Léger painted Deux femmes tenant des fleurs, picking up on a subject that can be found again and again in his painterly work. Two female nudes are in a spatial relationship with one another, which explores figurative forms, colours and space. In his paintings, his duo of women are often accompanied by a prop, such as the flower here, which is the painting's center and balance. Léger's two female figures are a continuation of his 1920s mechanistic-looking, but nevertheless classic figures. They indeed revive a neoclassicism that takes source in Picasso's neoclassical phase of that era.

L'ART DOIT NAÎTRE DU MATÉRIAUX.

This commonplace object is deconstructed to become an abstract division of cells outlined with serpentine black lines. "Dubuffet has just taken L'Hourloupe for a walk in the real world" (Max Loreau) and he thus interprets a whole range of ordinary objects, including this Réchaud-four à gaz IV. By cutting up these unspecified compositions, and laying them against a black background, he gives birth to a new world. With this, the artist wishes to demonstrate the arbitrary and conditioned functioning of the gaze.

Cet objet banal est déconstruit pour devenir une division abstraite de cellules délimitées par des lignes noires serpentines. « Dubuffet vient de promener L'Hourloupe dans le monde réel » (Max Loreau) et il interprète ainsi toute une gamme d'objets du quotidien, dont ce Réchaud-four à gaz IV. En découpant ces compositions indéterminées, et en les disposant sur un fond noir, il fait naître un nouveau monde. L'artiste espère ainsi démontrer le fonctionnement arbitraire et conditionné du regard.

Ce tableau est très représentatif de l'utilisation des transparencies par Soulages qui imprègne ses œuvres à la fin des années 1950. Ici, le noir révèle subtilement la couche sous-jacente de rouge-brun, par une technique de grattage, ou «transparence par enlèvement de la matière». Pratiquée jusqu'en 1963, cette technique fait écho à Rembrandt avec ses effets de clair-obscur. Cette toile incarne la main de maître de Soulages et les possibilités artistiques offertes par la peinture à l'huile, pratique empreinte du prestige des beaux-arts.

LA PEINTURE EST UN JEU D'OPACITÉS ET DE LA TRANSPARENCE.

PAINTING IS A PLAY OF OPACITIES AND TRANSPARENCIES.

This painting is very representative of Soulages' use of transparencies that pervaded his works at the end of the 1950s. Here, black subtly reveals the underlying layer of red-brown, by a technique of scraping, or "transparency by uncovering". Practiced until 1963, this technique echoes Rembrandt with its chiaroscuro effects. This canvas embodies Soulages' mastery and the artistic possibilities offered by oil painting, a practice imprinted with the prestige of the beaux-arts.

Dès les années 1950, Bernard Buffet commence à peindre une collection de visages de clowns qui imprégnent ses œuvres. Les tableaux de clown connaissent un grand succès et deviennent très vite la marque de fabrique de ce peintre de génie. Le symbole de l'Arlequin revêt une myriade de visages différents pour illustrer le passage de l'obscurité à la lumière, de la joie à la tristesse.

Les lignes sont audacieuses, avec des traits noirs typiques du travail de l'artiste. Les clowns tristes de Buffet sont le reflet d'une intérieurité empreinte d'angoisse existentielle.

JE RECHERCHE AVANT TOUT L'INTENSITÉ DE L'EXPRESSION PAR LA FERMETÉ DU DESSIN DE LEURS TRAITS.

this genius painter. The symbol of Harlequin takes on a myriad of different faces to illustrate the passage from darkness to light, from joy to sadness. The lines are bold, with black strokes that are typical characteristics of the artist's work. Buffet's sad clowns are the reflection of an interiority imbued with existential angst.

A s early as the 1950s, Bernard Buffet began to paint a collection of clown faces that would pervade his works. The clown paintings were very successful and very quickly became the trademark of Créée en 1988, l'œuvre Does the Whale Diminish ? de Frank Stella renvoie au livre Moby Dick de Herman Melville et plus précisément au chapitre 105 intitulé Does the Whale's Magnitude Diminish ?, Récit de chasse punitive à la baleine blanche. Tout au long des œuvres de cette série, Frank Stella se plaît à explorer les possibilités de variations infinies des courbes et contre-courbes de la vague. Au grès de ses expérimentations, l'omniprésence de la vague s'accentue pour mieux révéler toute la fascination de l'artiste pour l'essence abstraite d'un motif pourtant figuratif. L'œuvre, dans toute sa théâtralité, rejoue ainsi le drame d'un des plus grands romans du XIX^{ème} siècle, pour convoquer les enseignements de l'art baroque dans une formidable projection en métal.

J'AI CHERCHÉ UNE CERTAINE VITALITÉ DANS MOBY DICK, QUELQUE CHOSE COMME UNE TENSION VIBRANTE DANS LE LANGAGE ET LA NARRATION.

I LOOKED FOR A CERTAIN VITALITY IN MOBY DICK, SOMETHING LIKE A VIBRANT TENSION IN ITS LANGUAGE AND NARRATION.

MON ART PROVIENT D'HALLUCINATIONS QUE SEULE MOI PEUX VOIR.

Le thème récurrent de la citrouille chez Kusama a commencé lorsqu'elle était enfant dans le Japon d'avant-guerre, où sa famille possédait une pépinière où ils cultivaient la courge kabocha. Pour Kusama, les citrouilles sont des motifs chaleureux et amusants, avec des traits qui ont quelque chose d'humain. "J'ai été enchantée par leur forme charmante et séduisante", a déclaré Kusama. "Ce qui m'a le plus séduite, c'est la simplicité généreuse de la citrouille."

Kusama recurring pumpkin theme started as a child in pre-war Japan, where her family owned a plant nursery that farmed kabocha squash. To Kusama, the pumpkins are warm and funny motifs, with traits that can almost feel human. "I was enchanted by their charming and winsome form," Kusama said. "What appealed to me most was the pumpkin's generous unpretentiousness."

L'artiste colombien Fernando Botero montre son enchantement pour le cirque, revivant la magie qu'il a ressenti en tant qu'enfant lors de sa première visite au chapiteau. Pour l'artiste, le cirque offre de nombreuses possibilités artistiques - il permet d'être à la fois logique et imaginatif. Au cirque tout est possible. Botero a également été inspiré par les peintures de cirque des artistes français Edgar Degas, Pierre-Auguste Renoir et Henri Matisse.

Manolo Valdés convoque Matisse ici « comme un prétexte » - c'est une démarche iconoclaste mais qui honore aussi l'image canonisée d'un portrait matissien. Il part de Matisse pour ensuite décomposer et recomposer les toiles de jute, qui se superposent entre les couleurs vives. Il fait revivre le temps et la mémoire en métamorphosant les tracés et la couleur lisses de Matisse, en ajoutant un propos supplémentaire aux formes pures et calmes. La toile ouvre en quelque sorte un débat, une césure entre le propos artistique de Valdés et celui de son inspiration, Matisse - le texte et son architexte, dialoguant ensemble.

DE L'ART A PLACÉ ENTRE

Manolo Valdés summons Matisse here "as a pretext" - it's an iconoclastic gesture but one that also honours the canonised image of a Matissian portrait. He starts from Matisse, then decomposing and recomposing the burlaps, which are superimposed between the bright colours. He revives time and memory by transforming Matisse's smooth lines and colours, adding an additional layer to his pure and, calm forms. The canvas opens a sort of debate, a caesura between Valdés' artistic discourse and that of his inspiration, Matisse - the text and its architext, in dialogue together.
